

We were looking for a place to relocate our headquarters after our Division was purchased by another company. We wanted to take the opportunity not only to move our office space but to create an environment where we could establish an identity and have our associates feel motivated and excited about their work surroundings.

After a very extensive process that evaluated virtually every existing option in the Conejo Valley, we picked the Phase II section in Westlake Park Place working with Fullmer Construction. Everyone that was associated with this company had such a wonderful attitude toward making sure that we were satisfied during the entire process. This did not stop after we moved in. They have been great partners in making sure our needs are always being met.

The quality and design of our building has energized our associates. We have added a lot more functionality into our workspace than our previous building had and we were very proud that our building has received an award of LEED Gold certification. This is very important to us. Making products that are healthy and fun to eat, while protecting the environment is contained within our Mission Statement.

We aspire to be a “Best in Class” company and the quality and image of our building in Westlake Park Place helps us in working toward this goal. We are very excited that we are a member of this growing business community. It has been a pleasure working with Fullmer Construction on this project.

Sincerely,

Brad Bartlett
